Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

Judge Wayne Rayburn was explaining the building of the new county jail to us yesterday. He explained the need for a new jail has been felt for several years.

Not too long ago the Fiscal Court really spent the money on fixing up the Circuit Court room. New light fixtures were installed, a new ceiling was put in, and the whole thing was painted.

The first drunk that was placed in the county jail after this redecoration, who felt real mean, fouled up the plumbing and as a result water ran out on the floor and consequently seeped through the wall to show inside the court room. Repeated doses of this treatment has resulted in a pad looking west wall in the court room, which detracts from the extensive remodeling done by the court.

Another thing mentioned by Judge Rayburn, which we never thought of, is the physical "putting in" of the prisoner into the jail. You have to go up a narrow flight of stairs, turn a corner then go up some more, then turn a corner and go up some more. The stairway gets narrower as you go up.

You can imagine trying to look up some drunk, who don't want to be locked up. You would practically have to go tie him to get him up the stairs. In one instance, it took four men to get a fellow up the stairs to the third-floor jail.

Having a jail in the basement will enable officers to just roll a fellow into jail, should the necessity arise.

Incase you wonder if there is any extravagance on the part of the Magistrate in building this jail, you can quit worrying. They realize the scarcity of money more than anyone, as you can soon find out by visiting a session or so. There is a real need for this jail.

The county has lost prestige in the past by not being able to hold prisoners in custody. The jail will "fix" that situation.

All the school children were out of school yesterday for the FDEA meeting. Two Saturdays they called it.

Big wasp nest located in the shrub to the front door. Must have been twenty or thirty wasps crawling around on it. We told all the kids to stay clear of it but they dispatched the wasps with the water hose. Nobody got stung in the process.

Jet Pilots To Be Varsity Guests

All jet pilots residing in Calloway County are to be guests of the Varsity Theatre during the showing of The McConnell Story, starring Alan Ladd and June Allyson.

The McConnell Story is a story of a wonderful guy and a gal he calls "Butch" (June Allyson). It is a true and warm story of Captain Joe McConnell, a guy from the wrong side of the tracks, the "tiger in the sky" who became America's first triple jet ace and the beautiful bundle of courage called "Butch" who became his wife. It is in CinemaScope and color, and is showing Sunday and Monday at the Varsity Theatre.

Princess And Commoner In Tryst; Marriage Expected

By HAROLD M. WILLARD
United Press Staff Correspondent
WINDSOR, England, Oct. 15 (AP) — Queen Mother Elizabeth went to Windsor today to spend a week-end with the handsome divorced air hero at a country estate near Windsor Castle.

The 25-year-old Princess had left her mother behind Friday when she went to Windsor to spend a week-end with the handsome divorced air hero at a country estate near Windsor Castle.

The unprecedented week-end tryst, which defied royal protocol, was the first time that a commoner had been allowed to spend a week-end with the Princess.

Margaret had breakfast in bed this morning while gentleman jockey Townsend galloped alone on a horse named Juliet.

The pilot and the princess were retracing the early days of their romance in the Berkshire Hills in a rendezvous at the home of Mrs. John Wills on the border of Windsor Great Park.

Some Britons accepted the fact that their weekend together at the spot where their romance developed was the next best thing to a formal engagement.

Automation Will Contribute To Better Economy

By FRANK ELZEER
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (AP) — Director Robert W. Burgess of the Census Bureau today forecast that automation will contribute to a steadily expanding economy with more jobs, better pay, and less work.

Burgess, in testimony prepared for a congressional hearing on automation, said machines already have taken over much of many drudgery and promise to take over much more.

He said this may lead to "serious short-run dislocations" in particular fields—in other words, unemployment—but that in the long run automation will "facilitate and promote the general expansion."

Burgess said employment statistics show that scientific and technological advances create more jobs in some fields than they wipe out in others. The telephone industry displaced many workers with dial equipment, but in 10 years it almost doubled its employment.

Jobs To Pay Better

"I do not expect the further development of machines to reduce the number of jobs over the long term," said Burgess. "Furthermore, in my judgment, the new jobs will be less arduous, more satisfying to the individual, and better-paying."

The business and employment statistics on which Burgess based his predictions were tabulated, in part, on just the kind of machine he was talking about: An electronic computer which he said can digest information faster than humans can feed it.

Installation of this machine—the Univac—has displaced some clerks, he said, but it has created new and better jobs for better-trained and higher-paid personnel. Also, it has enabled the bureau to expand its functions.

The subcommittee is calling experts in many fields for testimony on probable effects of automation on jobs and the economy generally. Among other things it asks its witnesses how they define the subject.

Emphasis On Electronic Control

Generally automation is considered to be the latest phase in a continuing process of technological development with new emphasis on electronic controls that guide machines in their work.

D. J. Davis, Ford Motor Co. vice president in charge of production, told the subcommittee today that $1,800 automobile would cost $50,000 if built by old-fashioned hand work. He said Ford is not afraid of automation.

He said the auto industry expects to turn out a record 8-million cars this year, the same number in 1956, and about 9-million in 1957.

MURRAYANS LEAVE TO BE WITH CLEATUS BROACH

Cleatus Broach, formerly of Calloway County, is in serious condition following an extensive operation several days ago.

He is a brother of Mrs. Dudley Johnson and Mrs. R. L. Williams of Murray. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson left this morning to be with him.

MOROCCO: Thorn in the Side of France

Premier Edgar Faure

Sultan Moulay Ben Aafa, exiled to Tangier

Casablanca looks like any modern seaport. Population is nearly half a million.

House in London shortly before noon today in her royal limousine and sped off on the road to the Princess took to Windsor Friday night. It was understood—the queen mother intended to spend the whole weekend at Windsor Royal Lodge, in Windsor Great Park. Court observers were convinced that Queen Elizabeth would never have permitted the unprecedented spectacle of Margaret and Townsend week-end together unless an engagement was in the works. The general speculation was that Prime Minister Anthony Eden would break the news in the House of Commons when Parliament meets again Oct. 25. Eden then would launch a swift, legislative procedure to permit the marriage, with all political parties approving in advance.

Townsend refused to talk this morning when he rode for 45 minutes. Margaret stayed inside the forest-shielded Wills home.

Squads of police armed with dogs and walkie-talkie radios guarded the country estate in the wooded hills near Windsor Castle to shield the couple from a prying world while a powerful segment of the British press rose to their defense.

The world, rocked first by Townsend's visit to the princess at Clarence House in the presence of the queen mother, was rocked again today by the Windsor tryst, even though an icy statement from Clarence House seemingly denied the signs of an early engagement.

It said "no announcement concerning Princess Margaret's future is at present contemplated." Not one of London's nine dailies tried to interpret the statement one way or the other, including the Daily Express and the Daily Sketch, which were first to predict an engagement. They also did not try to explain the weekend tryst. At any rate it was believed a formal announcement—if one is forthcoming—would have to await the meeting of Parliament Oct. 25.

The RAF group captain and the princess went separately to their weekend rendezvous. Townsend in his green French sports car, the princess in a black sedan whose speed along the back country roads belie its sedateness.

Courted Two Years Ago

The rendezvous was at the home of Mrs. John Wills, on the border of Windsor Great Park, where Townsend courted Margaret two years ago on hikes and horseback. The house is in a densely-wooded park.

Chairmen Draw It Out In Slur

CHICAGO, Oct. 15 (AP) — The chairmen of the Republican and Democratic National committees slugged it out verbally Friday night in a preview of 1956 campaign issues.

Republican Chairman Leonard W. Hall and Democratic Chairman Paul H. Butler locked horns in a debate centered around "peace and prosperity" before 1,800 members of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce.

Judging by the applause, the bout was a draw.

Butler, leading off 25 minutes of prepared statements and rebuttal by each opponent, accused the GOP of doing a "huckster job of selling peace."

The Democrats, he said, had not wanted to make foreign policy an issue in the coming presidential campaign, "but when the Republicans try to sell it as an exclusive Republican product, the Democrats have no choice but to meet this in rebuttal with facts."

For all practical purposes, the war in Korea had stopped long before the truce, he said.

Hall countered that "peace and prosperity" was a factual accomplishment of the Eisenhower administration and added:

"I challenge any Democrat to show where we had prosperity under Democrats which was without war or preparation for war."

Besides, Hall said, Communist domination of many countries increased under the Democrats.

The chairmen also clashed on the issue of big business in government, farm policy, Geneva, and economic controls.

Near Hurricane Pounds East Coast, Heavy Damage Reported

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP) — A near hurricane pounded the North Atlantic coast Friday night and today with wind-whipped rains and high tides causing heavy wind damage and local flooding.

The sneak storm roared across areas not yet recovered from last month's disastrous floods.

At least nine deaths were attributed to the storm in New York state and New England. Six persons died in automobile accidents, two drowned in swollen streams and two died when they touched fallen wires.

In addition, 25 college students were injured near Monson, Mass., when a bus in which they were returning from a soccer game crashed through a highway barrier into a gully.

The storm, described by the Weather Bureau as an undeveloped hurricane, backed winds at speeds as 70 miles an hour. It struck the upper Middle Atlantic states Friday and roared north-east to Hartford, Bridgeport, Conn., and reported continuing strong winds and heavy rains early today.

The storm slammed into Massachusetts early today with its fury, dumping more than three and one-half inches of rain in some places. At least two more inches of rain was expected today posing flood threats to lowland areas.

The Hartford Weather Bureau warned that moderate to heavy rains would prolong the threat of flash flooding throughout most of today in areas of small streams of southern Massachusetts and Connecticut. It warned there would be "considerable flash flooding."

Ward Questions Parks Future

NATURAL BRIDGE, Oct. 15 (AP) — Kentucky Conservation Commissioner Henry Ward questioned the future of the state parks system in a speech here Friday night.

Ward, speaking to the Natural Bridge State Park Association, said he has reached the conclusion that the parks "cannot be operated successfully over an extended period of time under existing conditions."

"The park program has grown into big business," he explained, "and its successful operation requires experienced and trained personnel."

"It is not going to be possible for the state to employ or retain the kind of personnel needed to operate a park system," Ward said.

The commissioner went on to add that both the candidates for governor say they favor continued expansion of the park system. Then he made this comment:

"Obviously the successful candidate will not administer the program himself. The measure of how he carries out his campaign commitment will be determined by the kind of personnel secured to replace those who are quitting or who will be fired in the political changeover."

"The naming of people on the basis of whom they know rather than what they know about the business of state parks would be a serious blow to the parks and the welfare of Kentucky."

This Week's Balance Sheet In The Hot And Cold Wars

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent
The week's good and bad news on the international balance sheet:

The Good

1. President Eisenhower, in a letter to Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin, offered to accept a Soviet proposal that the United States and Russia send inspection teams to military concentration points in each other's countries. The purpose would be to guard against sudden aggressive mobilization. The President's letter seemed to reflect hope that he saw the possibility of some progress, however slow, toward eventual agreement on disarmament.

2. Iran, abandoning its long-standing neutrality, announced that it would join the important Turkish-Pakistani-British military alliance. Iran thus linked its defense against Communist aggression with the vast system of Allied defense against Communist aggression. Soviet Russia's action, as expected, was immediate and angry. The Kremlin told Iran that its action threatened peace and violated Russian-Iranian treaties. The State Department warned Russia to keep hands off Iran.

3. The Paraguayan government ordered ousted Argentine dictator Juan D. Peron interned in the interior of the country and threatened to expel him if he violated the conditions of the asylum he had sought. The action was a safeguard against any attempt at a trouble-making.

The Bad

1. Communist China announced in a radio broadcast from Peking that it is "groundless" for the United States to hope that any missing American service men are still held in China. The United States is convinced that the Reds are holding nearly 500 Americans captured during the Korean War. The Chinese Reds also dragged their heels in negotiations in Geneva, Switzerland, after their promise to release all imprisoned American civilians.

2. British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden joined Secretary of State John Foster Dulles in warning Russia that it is endangering peace in the Middle East by letting Communist Czechoslovakia sell arms to Egypt.

The State Department believes that Soviet bloc countries may offer to supply Israel with weapons, thus adding to tension. In pursuance of the Kremlin's new and determined attempt to penetrate the Middle East, Soviet Ambassador to Egypt Daniel L. Solod said Russia also is willing to give "technical help" to all Arab and Asian countries which want it.

3. Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, West Germany's "grand old man" suffered an attack of pneumonia. His illness, which probably will keep him in enforced idleness for weeks, was a matter of concern to the United States and its allies. It came while preparations were being made for a Big Four foreign ministers conference in Geneva on Oct. 27, when German problems will be the chief topic for negotiation. Adenauer's counsel will be missed. The chancellor's illness was a matter for additional concern because he is 79 years old and has refused to build up a political heir.

Stevenson indicated he expected support from Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, often mentioned as a possible Democratic standard bearer in 1956.

"I don't know, but I campaigned for me and I campaigned for him when he ran for governor of New York," Stevenson said.

Stevenson said he did not know who would win the support of former President Truman, who earlier this week conferred with Harriman in New York.

Joe Dukes Named To Head FDEA

Joe Dukes, superintendent of city schools at Benton, was elected president of the 1st District of Kentucky Education Association at the group's annual meeting here Friday.

Dukes succeeds Howard Reid, Wingo High School principal. Other officers elected included: Loyce Rayburn, superintendent of Calloway County schools, vice president and Robert Petrie, principal of Bardwell High School, a new member of the board of directors.

Mrs. Willie Ray, Shelbyville, a director of the National Education Association, recommended minimum teachers salaries of $4,200 and maximum salaries of $9,000 for Kentucky.

She added, "I know this may sound far-fetched, but remember a few years ago the NEA recommended minimum teacher salaries of $2,400 and that is now a reality in most systems."

Stevenson Would Accept Nomination

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 15 (AP) — Adlai E. Stevenson said Friday night he would accept the Democratic presidential nomination if offered in 1956 but added he did not expect to be drafted again.

Stevenson, unsuccessful Democratic candidate for the presidency in 1952, made his statements in a press conference at Queen's University, which will award him an honorary doctorate of laws tonight.

"Would you accept the nomination, if offered," a newsmen said. "I would accept," Stevenson replied. "I have not made up my mind as to my intentions, but I will make them known in November. It is unlikely that I will be drafted again."

Stevenson indicated he expected support from Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, often mentioned as a possible Democratic standard bearer in 1956.

"I don't know, but I campaigned for me and I campaigned for him when he ran for governor of New York," Stevenson said.

Stevenson said he did not know who would win the support of former President Truman, who earlier this week conferred with Harriman in New York.

More Children Being Born In Hospitals

NEW YORK, N. Y. - More and more children in the United States are being born in hospitals, statisticians report.

In the past few years the number has exceeded 3,500,000 annually, in 1952, the last year for which official data are available, about 9,530,000 or better than 9 out of every 10 births were delivered in hospitals, and there is definite evidence that the proportion has risen appreciably since then. The proportion of hospitalized births in the white population increased from 59.9 to 95.7 per cent between 1940 and 1952, and among nonwhites from 26.7 to 66.4 per cent.

A percentage-wise gain in hospitalized confinements is evident throughout the country, and is especially noteworthy in the areas which in the past had the lowest proportion of hospital deliveries. Thus, in the white population of Kentucky the proportion rose from 18.7 to 80.4 per cent between 1940 and 1952; in West Virginia the rise was from 20.2 to 83.2 per cent, and in Arkansas from 21.5 to 88.1 per cent.

Geographic differences in the proportion of hospitalized births have narrowed a great deal, but there is still appreciable variation from one state to another, particularly for the nonwhite population. In the majority of northern and western states, more than 90 per cent of the nonwhite births during 1952 were in hospitals, but in the South, the proportion was considerably lower.

The increase in the actual number of babies born in hospitals has been particularly rapid, the statisticians noted, reflecting the rise in the birth rate. In the country as a whole the number of white babies delivered in hospitals was more than two and a half times as high in 1952 as in 1940. In 10 states—nine of them in the South—the 1952 figure was at least four times that only 12 years earlier.

Various factors have played a part in encouraging more women to utilize hospital facilities for maternity, it was pointed out. Such facilities have grown in number, improved in quality, and have become accessible to an increasing proportion of the population. Improvements in economic conditions since 1940 have made it possible for a wider segment of the population to afford the use of hospital service. This trend has been accelerated by the rapid development of hospital and medical insurance plans.

The increase in hospital deliveries has been a potent influence in reducing maternal and infant mortality, the statisticians conclude. "However, opportunities still exist for further progress, particularly in conserving the lives and health of premature babies. Many hospitals have already made special provisions for the specialized medical and nursing care that these infants require, and more are planning to do so. These services will undoubtedly help to reduce the heavy loss of life that still occurs among such babies."

Most State Poultry Is Not Inspected

Health authorities estimated that 85 per cent of poultry processed in Kentucky receives no thorough inspection, a report of the Legislative Research Commission disclosed today.

"Only careful inspection of meat at slaughtering plants can protect public health," the report, made in conformity with a resolution of the 1954 General Assembly that a poultry study be undertaken, declared.

"Estimated based on a State Department of Health survey indicate that between 10 and 13 per cent of annual commercial cattle and hog slaughter is sold without inspection. Poultry inspection presents a striking contrast, with little provision being made for inspection of poultry carcasses or plant facilities. Health authorities estimate that 85 per cent of poultry processed in the State is not thoroughly inspected."

The reason for so much poultry being processed without examination, the commission report suggested, was that when legislation was first passed dealing with the subject, most chickens were killed at home.

The report added that "it may be desirable ultimately to establish compulsory State meat inspection" and warned against a program poorly conceived or operated.

"Remedial legislation should be sound and practical," according to the study. "One approach is through model ordinances suitable for voluntary local adoption. An official meat stamp under a State program should mean that the product has passed most rigid expert examination. Records should be kept so as to be of maximum benefit to sanitary officials in locating origin of diseased animals."
